This document is synthetic content authored for a multi-agent fraud intelligence hackathon. It paraphrases the structure and themes of public materials (Nigerian Money Laundering (Prevention and Prohibition) Act and CBN AML/CFT regulations, publicly available) but contains no verbatim reproduction of them. Thresholds, codes and identifiers are illustrative.

1. Identity infrastructure

Customers are identified using the bank verification number and national identity number. Accounts are tiered: low-tier accounts have reduced documentation requirements and correspondingly capped balances and cumulative transaction limits; upgrading a tier requires full documentation.

2. Reporting thresholds

| Report                                    | Threshold                                 | Deadline                             |
|-------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| Currency transaction report - individuals | Above the statutory cash threshold        | Within 7 days                        |
| Currency transaction report - corporates  | Above the higher corporate cash threshold | Within 7 days                        |
| Suspicious transaction report             | No threshold                              | Within 24 hours of forming suspicion |
| Foreign currency movement declaration     | Statutory travel threshold                | On entry or exit                     |

3. Local red flags

- Accounts opened with low-tier documentation that immediately receive multiple inbound transfers from unrelated individuals and are emptied within hours.
- Business email compromise pattern: a single large inbound international transfer followed by fragmentation across 10 or more personal accounts.
- Rapid conversion of naira credits into virtual assets through peer-to-peer platforms.

- Use of a bureau de change to break large cash sums into multiple foreign currency purchases below declaration limits.
- Politically exposed person's associate receiving contract-related payments from a government vendor with no evidenced services.
