Thresholds, codes and identifiers are illustrative.

1. Programme pillars

- Internal policies, procedures and controls reasonably designed to assure compliance.
- A designated compliance officer with authority and resources.
- Ongoing training for appropriate personnel.
- Independent testing of the programme, typically annually.
- Risk-based customer due diligence, including understanding the nature and purpose of relationships and ongoing monitoring.

2. Reporting thresholds

Report	Threshold	Deadline
Currency transaction report	More than 10,000 USD in currency in one business day, aggregated by person	15 calendar days
Suspicious activity report - banks	5,000 USD or more where a suspect is identifiable; 25,000 USD regardless of suspect	30 calendar days from initial detection
Suspicious activity report - money services businesses	2,000 USD or more	30 calendar days

Report	Threshold	Deadline
Funds transfer recordkeeping and travel rule	3,000 USD or more	Records retained 5 years
Monetary instrument log	3,000 to 10,000 USD in currency	Records retained 5 years
Report of foreign bank accounts	Aggregate above 10,000 USD	Annual

3. Structuring

It is a federal offence to structure, assist in structuring, or attempt to structure transactions for the purpose of evading a reporting requirement. Detection logic should evaluate aggregation by person and by related account across multiple branches and days, not per transaction.

4. Sanctions

Sanctions screening is a separate obligation from the BSA programme. Blocked property must be reported and the funds must be placed in a blocked interest-bearing account. Rejected transactions must also be reported. Facilitation, including causing a US person to engage in a prohibited transaction, is itself prohibited.

5. Local red flags

- Multiple cash deposits of 9,000 to 9,900 USD across different branches or ATMs on consecutive days.
- Business account with heavy round-dollar wire activity to a trade hub and negligible payroll or tax payments.
- Funnel account: deposits in many states, withdrawals concentrated in a single border region.
- Purchase of sequentially numbered monetary instruments below 3,000 USD by the same person.
- Cross-border wires described as goods purchases with no corresponding customs or shipping activity.
