This document is synthetic content authored for a multi-agent fraud intelligence hackathon. It paraphrases the structure and themes of public materials (Mexican federal AML law on operations with illicit proceeds (LFPIORPI) and CNBV rules, publicly available) but contains no verbatim reproduction of them. Thresholds, codes and identifiers are illustrative.

1. Vulnerable activities

Non-financial activities designated as vulnerable include gaming, prepaid card issuance, real estate development and brokerage, dealing in precious metals and jewellery, art dealing, vehicle sales, professional services in defined transactions, notarial acts, and armoured vehicle services. Each has its own identification and reporting threshold expressed in indexation units.

2. Cash restrictions and reporting

| Control                                      | Limit                                   | Effect                                            |
|----------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------|
| US dollar cash deposits - individual clients | Monthly cap per client                  | Excess must be rejected and documented            |
| US dollar cash deposits - non-clients        | Materially lower monthly cap            | Excess rejected; repeated attempts reportable     |
| Threshold reporting of cash operations       | Defined value in indexation units       | Monthly report to the financial intelligence unit |
| 24-hour notice                               | Any operation deemed unusual and urgent | Immediate notice to the authority                 |

3. Unusual and concerning operations

- Unusual operation: inconsistent with the client's declared activity, transactional history or economic capacity.
- Internal concerning operation: conduct by an employee or officer that could favour non-compliance.
- Both categories require documented internal committee assessment before reporting.

4. Local red flags

- Border-region accounts receiving frequent dollar cash deposits followed by immediate transfers to the interior or to a northern neighbour corridor.
- Vehicle or heavy machinery dealers accepting split payments from multiple third parties for a single unit.
- Remittance beneficiaries receiving from many unrelated senders in a single foreign corridor, with same-day cash-out.
- Real estate settled through a trust with beneficiaries changed shortly before or after the transaction.
